I looked at the web stats log for my website www.aboutdave.com (where my resume is) and I noticed that someone from nn01.nnng.com was looking at my website quite a bit. This means that someone from nnng was looking at my site.

Well, to make things fun for them, I wrote a program that checks their IP address and hostname and if it comes from nnng then it displays a message saying the site is restricted and then redirects to www.fbi.gov!!! Sure, if they connect from home or offsite they can get through, but that's not the point...

Do you know what your IP address is? I would like to test it on someone offsite...

Let me know.
